In addition, we also asked our lead character designer to give you a behind-the-scenes look at how he created each character.

"I was very excited about Haunting of Castle Malloy as the game takes place entirely at night and the characters were unique and interesting.

*When I got the descriptions of the characters, I only had a small amount of time to do concept drawings for them as we were still wrapping up The Phantom of Venice. I tried to keep them loose and get more of the mood of the character across.*

For the groundskeeper, I wanted to use a lot subdued earth tones to fit his rustic Irish settings. I gave Kyler, the bride-to-be, emerald green and deep red to make her appear passionate and mysterious. Kit is an outsider, so I wanted to make him seem out of place with all of the natural colors of the castle. His clothing changed in the actual game, but he still stands out from his surroundings. My favorite design was of the banshee of Castle Malloy, but there's too many secrets revealed in that sketch, so you'll just have to wait and see. Overall I think Haunting of Castle Malloy has some of our best characters yet and I really enjoyed helping to bring them to life."

If you're trying to convince your parents to buy the game for you, ask them to play the demo (270MB download), try the Bodhran Beat mini-game, view the trailer, and go to the official website.
